

of Swartszenberg to renew the Attack on the next day and Notice given to Bernadotte and Blucher to make certain dispositions of their forces during the night So that a general combined Attack might be made upon all parts of the French Army—the Attack was made as concerted; Bennington who had just arrived with the Army of Rouen, seems to have sustained the hottest fire and contributed to the Victory in that Quarter where the Allied Army under Pr. Swartszenberg fought. Bernadotte and Blucher carried all the positions of the French in the Quarters where they fought and before night the French Armies were routed and fleeing in all Directions. France has lost some of her best Generals. It is stated, but not officially, that MacDonald is taken Prisoner, and that Prince Poniatowsky, who commanded the Polish Troops was drowned in his flight in the river Saale. The official letters of Sir. Ch. Stewart written on the 19th, a few hours after the Allies entered Leipsig, announce the Capture of Generals Sabiston, Brune, Vallary and many other distinguished Commanders. General Latour Manbourg lost a leg. Since the death of Bessieres the Duke of Istria, Manbourg has been esteemed the best Commander of Cavalry in Europe, except Murat the King of Naples.

Buonaparte attempted a retreat by the Road to Erforth, But Bernadotte had detached such a force in that direction, that he changed his route, and took the road to Brunswick with the wreck of his Army. It is expected that by the route of the Saale he will endeavour to force his way to the Military posts near the Mouth of the Rhine. Genl. Blucher pursued him along this Rout and Bernadotte had Succeeded in throwing a Strong force between him and the Rhine in this Direction.

In the Battle of the 17th Octo. the Saxon Troops with their Artillery went down and joined Bernadotte, who made a Speech to them, put himself at the Head and lead them against the French. In the Battle on the next day, 17 Battalions of German Troops with their Artillery went over to the Allied Army. Bavaria has joined the Allies: the Saxon and many of the Wirtemberg Troops having joined them and the King of Saxony being taken Prisoner and all his Dominions in the hands of the Allies, he will of course join them. In forty eight hours, France has lost nearly 100,000 men and many of her best Generals. The Colossus of her Power is broken to pieces. Whilst she suffers this bad reverse of fortune in the North, Lord Wellington is entering her Territory in another quarter. He has stormed all the line of Military posts at the foot of the Pyrennees and displayed the British Standard on the Soil of Ancient France. How many Centuries have passed away since this Standard was unfurled on French Ground?

The Prince Regent's Speech is in the Papers of today. He announces the great events upon the Continent and the junction of Bavaria to the Coalition. He regrets the War with the United States, declares a Disposition to Settle the Difference, and applauds the Conduct of his Troops in Canada. It is conjectured that the Flag of Truce which has arrived
